

XV.745-805

hic, haec, hoc: this

tamen adv.: however accedo, -cedere, -cessi, -cessum: to approach, come near delubrum, -i, n.: a shrine, temple advena, -ae, m.: a stranger, foreigner noster, -tra, -trum: our, ours

Caesar, -aris, m.: a Roman family name; esp. of C. Iulius Caesar in prep. with abl.: in, into urbs, urbis, f.: a walled town or city suus, -a, -um: his, her, its(own) deus, -i, m.: a god, deity sum, esse, fui, futurus: to be, to exist qui, quae, quod relat.: who, which, what, that Mars, Martis, m.: Mars, god of agriculture and of war; war toga, -ae, f.: the white woolen upper garment worn by Roman citizens

-que conj.: and praecipuus, -a, -um: outstanding, special, distinguished non adv.: not bellum, -i, n.: war, fighting magis adv.: more

finio, -ire, -ivi, -itum: to put an end to, conclude, finish triumphus, -i, m.: triumphal procession, triumph

res, rei, f.: a thing, object

-que conj.: and

domus, -us, f.: a house, home gero, gerere, gessi, gestum: to carry, bear; accomplish res gestae: exploits, accomplishments propero, -are, -avi, properatum: to hasten, accelerate, hurry

-que conj.: and

gloria, -ae, f.: fame, renown, glory; ambition

res, rei, f.: a thing, object in prep. with acc.: in, into sidus, -eris, n.: a constellation or a single star verto, vertere, verti, versum: to turn novus, -a, -um: new, fresh stella, -ae, f.: a star ; stella comans: a comet

-que conj.: and

comans, -antis: hairy

quam adv.: than suus, -a, -um: his, her, its progenies, -ei, f.: descent, lineage; progeny, son neque conj.: not; and not, nor enim conj.: for, indeed de prep. with abl.: down from, away from, about, concerning

Caesar, -aris, m.: a Roman family name; esp. of C. Iulius Caesar

actum, -i, n.: doing, action, act ullus, -a, -um: any maior, maius: greater opus, -eris, n.: work, deed quam adv.: than quod conj.: the fact that; as pater, -tris, m.: father exsisto, -ere, -stiti: to become, turn into hic, haec, hoc: this, this one scilicet adv.: evidently, certainly aequoreus, -a, -um: belonging to the sea plus, pluris: more sum, esse, fui :to be, to exist domo, domare, domui, domitum: to tame, conquer, subdue Britanni, -orum, m. pl.: the Britons per prep. with acc.: through

-que conj.: and papyrifer, -fera, -ferum: producing papyrus septemfluus, -a, -um: with seven mouths flumen, -inis, n.: a river, stream Nilus, -i, m.: the river Nile victrix, -trix: victorious ago, agere, egi, actum: to conduct, lead ratis, -is, f.: a raft, skiff, small boat Numidus, -a, -um: Numidian
-que conj.: and
rebelles, -um, m.pl.: rebels, insurgents Cinyphius, -a, -um: of the river Cinyphus
-que conj.: and Iuba, -ae, m.: name of two Numidian kings Mithridateus, -a, -um: Mithradatean, of Mithradates name of several kings of Pontus
-que conj.: and
tumeo, -ere: to swell, be swollen nomen, -inis, n.: a name Pontus, -i, m.: Pontus, the Black Sea region populus, -i, m.: a people adicio, -icere, -ieci, -iectum: to throw to, add Quirinus, -i, m.: Romulus, his deified name et conj.: and multus, -a, -um: many mereo, -ere, -ui, -itum: to deserve, earn, merit aliqui, aliqua, aliquod: some, other ago, agere, egi, actum: to conduct, lead
triumphus, -i, m.: triumphal procession, triumph quam adv.: than tantus, -a, -um: such gigno, gignere, genui, genitum: to beget, bear, produced vir, viri, m.: a man, male person qui, quae, quod: who, which, what, that praesideo, -sidere, -sedi, -sessum: to sit before; to watch over, be in charge
res, rei, f.: a thing, object humanus, -a, -um: human, of human beings genus, -eris, n.: family, kind, race superi, -orum, m.pl.: the gods above faveo, favere, favi, fautum: to favor, be favorable to, help, support abunde adv.: copiously, abundantly ne conj.: not, that not, lest sum, esse, fui: to exist, to be
hic, haec, hoc: this, this one igitur conj.: therefore, then mortalis, -e: subject to death, mortal semen, seminis, n.: seed, semen cresco, crescere, crevi, cretum: to come into existence, spring forth ille, illa, illud: that, that one
deus, -i, m.: a god, deity facio, facere, feci, factum: to make, form
sum, esse, fui: to exist, to be qui, quae, quod: who ut adv.: as, when aureus, -a, -um: golden video, videre, vidi, visum: to see Aeneas, -ae, m.: son of Venus and Anchises genetrix, -tricis, f.: a mother video, videre, vidi, visum: to see quoque conj.: also tristis, -e: sad, gloomy, dismal, forbidding, harsh paro -are, -aui, -atum: to prepare, arrange, make ready pontifex, -ficis, m.: a pontifex, priest letum, -i, n.: ruin, annihilation

et conj.: and
coniuro, -are, -avi, -atum: to swear together, conspire arma, -orum, n. pl.: defensive arms, armor, weapons of war moveo, movere, movi, motum: to move, set in motion, stir pallesco, pallescere, pallui: to grow pale
et conj.: and
cunctus, -a, -um: all, every ut adv.: as quisque, quaeque, quodque: each
sum, esse, fui: to exist, to be obvius, -a, -um: in the way, meeting divus, -i, m.: deity, god aspicio, aspicere, aspexi, aspectum: to look at dico, dicere, dixi, dictum: to say quantus, -a, -um: how much, now many ego, mei, mihi, me, me: I, me moles, -is, f.: mass, heap; power, strength, might; vast crowd paro -are, -aui, -atum: to prepare, arrange, make ready insidiae, -arum, f. pl.: plot, treachery quantus, -a, -um: how much, now many
-que conj.: and
caput, -itis, n.: the head, leader; life cum prep. with abl.: with fraus, fraudis, f.: deceit, fraud peto, -ere, -ivi and -ii, -itum: to seek, strive after qui, quae, quod: who, which de prep. with abl.: from Dardanius, -a, -um: Dardanian, of Dardanus the mythical ancestor of the royal family of Troy solus, -a, -um: alone, only, sole
ego, mei, mihi, me, me: I, me resto, -stare, -stiti: to be left over, survive Iulus, -i, m.: Iulus, aka Ascanius son of Aeneas solus, -a, -um: alone, only, sole,
-ne interrogative enclitic particle: = ? semper adv.: always
sum, esse, fui: to exist, to be iustus, -a, -um: justified exerceo, -ere, -ui, -itum: to overwork, harass, trouble cura, -ae, f.: anxiety, worry
qui, quae, quod: who, which modo adv.: lately; recently Tydides, -ae, m.: son of Tydeus, i.e. Diomedes Calydonius, -a, -um: Calydonian vulnere, -are, -avi, -atum: to wound, injure hasta, -ae, f.: a spear, pike, javelin nunc adv.: now male, adv.: badly defendo, -fendere, -fendi, -fensum: to defend, protect confundo, -fundere, -fudi, -fusum: to throw into disorder, trouble, disturb moenia, -ium, n. pl.: the walls or fortifications of a city Troia, -ae, f.: the town of Troy qui, quae, quod: who, which

video, videre, vidi, visum: to see natus, -i, m.: son longus, -a, -um: long error, -oris, m.: wandering about ago, agere, egi, actum: to drive iacto, -are, -avi, -atum: to throw, cast
-que, conj.: and
fretum, -i, n.: a strait, sea sedes, -is, f.: an abode, home
-que, conj.: and intro, -are, -avi, -atum: to go in, enter silens, -entis: silent, still bellum, -i, n.: war
-que conj.: and
cum prep. with abl.: with Turnus, -i, m.: A king of the Rutuli gero, gerere, gessi, gestum: to carry, bear, wage aut conj.: or si conj.: if verus, -a, -um: true, real fateor, fateri, fassus sum: to confess, admit
cum prep. with abl.: with Iuno, -onis, f.: Juno
magis adv.: more quis, quid: who, what, which
nunc adv.: now antiquus, -a, -um: antique, old, ancient recordor, -ari, -atus sum: to remember, recollect damnum, -i, n.: damage, injury meus, -a, -um: my, mine genus, -eris: family, race timor, -oris, m.: fear
hic, haec, hoc: this memini, meminisse: perfect to remember, recollect prior, prius: previously, former
non adv.: not sino, sinere, sivi, situm: to allow, permit en interj.: lo! behold! acuo, acuere, acui, acutum: to inflame, incite scelero, -are, -avi, -atum: to pollute with guilt cerno, cernere, crevi, cretum: to separate, sift; discern, perceive ensis, -is, m.: sword qui, quae, quod: who, what, which prohibeo, prohibere, prohibui: to restrain precor, -ari, -atus sum: to beg, pray facinus, -oris, n.: bad deed, crime
-que conj.: and
repello, repellere, reppuli, repulsum: to banish, drive away neve conj.: not, and not caedes, -is, f.: slaughter sacerdos, -otis, f.: priestess flamma, -ae, f.: flame extinguo, -ere, -extinxi, extinctum: to put out, extinguish Vesta, -ae, f.: goddess of hearth talis, -e: such neququam adv.: in vain, to no purpose totus, -a, -um: whole, entire Venus, -eris, f.: Venus anxius, -a, -um: anxious, uneasy caelum, -i, n.: sky, heaven verbum, -i, n.: word, speech iacio, iacere, ieci, iactum: to cast, send forth, hurl; declare, let fall superi, -orum, m.pl.: gods above, upper

-que conj.: and
moveo, movere, movi, motum: to move
qui, quae, quod: who, what, which rumpo, rumpere, rupi, ruptum: to break, shatter quamquam conj.: although ferreus, -a, -um: made of iron
non adv.: not
possum, posse, potui: to be able vetus, -eris: old, ancient decretum, -i, n.: decree soror, -oris, f.: sister signum, -i, n.: sign, mark tamen adv.: nevertheless, however luctus, -us, m.: lamentation, mourning do, dare, dedi, datum: to give haud adv.: not, by no means incertus, -a, -um: uncertain, doubtful sum, esse, fui, futurus: to be, exist arma, -orum, n. pl.: equipment, arms fero, ferre, tuli, latum: to bear, carry, bring inter prep. with acc.: among, between niger, -a, -um: dark, black crepito, -are, -avi, atum: to rattle, shake nubes, -is, f.: cloud terribilis, -e: terrible, dreadful
-que conj.: and tuba, -ae, f.: straight war trumpet of the Romans audio, audire, audivi, auditum: to hear, listen
-que conj.: and
cornu, -us, n.: horn
caelum, -i, n.: sky, heaven
praemoneo, praemonere, praemonui, praemonitum: to warn, advise, foretell nefas, n. indeclinable: sin, crime sol, solis, m.: sun quoque conj.: also
tristis, -e: sad imago, -inis, f.: image luridus, -a, -um: pure yellow, lurid sollicitus, -a, -um: disturbed, agitated praebeo, praebere, praebui, praebitum: to offer, provide, supply lumen, -inis, n.: light, eyes terra, -ae, f.: earth

saepe adv.: often fax, facis, f.: a torch video, -ere, vidi, visum: to see; (pass.) to seem medium, -i, n.: the middle, midst ardeo, -dere, -si, -sum: to blaze sub prep. w/abl.: under astrum, -i, n.: the stars saepe adv.: often inter prep. w/acc.: between nimbus, -i, m.: a cloud gutta, -ae, f.: a drop, speck cado, -ere, cecidi, casum: to fall cruentus, -a, -um: bloody caerulus, -a, -um: dark, dark blue
et conj.: and
vultus, -us, m.: appearance ferrugo, -inis, f.: iron-rust Lucifer, -fera, -ferum: the morning star, the planet Venus ater, -tra, -trum: black, dark spargo, -ere, -si, -sum: to fleck, sprinkle, scatter, splash, spatter sum, esse, fui, futurum: to be spargo, -ere, -si, -sum: to fleck, sprinkle, scatter, splash, spatter lunaris, -e: of the moon, lunar sanguis, -inis, m.: blood currus, -us, m.: a chariot tristis, -e: sorrowful, mournful mille num. adj.: a thousand locus, -i, m.: a place Stygius, -a, -um: Stygian
do, dare, dedi, datum: to give omen, -inis, n.: an omen bubo, -onis, m.: an owl mille num. adj.: a thousand
locus, -i, m.: a place
lacrimo, -are, -avi, -atum: to weep ebur, -oris, n.: statue of ivory cantus, -us, m.: a song
-que conj.: and
fero, ferre, tuli, latum: to produce; report audio, -ire, -ii, -itum: to hear sanctus, -a, -um: sacred
et conj.: and
verbum, -i, n.: a word minor, -ari, -atus sum: to threaten lucus, -i, m.: a sacred grove victima, -ae, f.: a victim nullus, -a, -um: no, not any lito, -are, -avi, -atum: to make an acceptable sacrifice magnus, -a, -um: great
-que conj.: and
insto, -are, -stiti, -staturum: to approach, impend tumultus, -us, m.: tumult fibra, -ae, f.: entrails moneo, -ere, -ui, -itus: to warn caedo, -ere, cecidi, caesum: to cut, sever, kill
-que conj.: and

caput, -itis, n.: head reperio, -ire, repperi, repertum: to find, discover in prep. w/abl: in exta, -orum, n.: heart, lungs, liver, the organs from which the haruspices drew their prognostications
in prep. w/abl: in
-que conj.: and
forum, -i, n.: forum circum adv.: around
-que conj.: and
domus, -i, f.: a home, house
et conj.: and
templum, -i, n.: a temple deus, -i, m.: a god nocturnus, -a, -um: nocturnal, of the night ululo, -are, -avi, -atum: to howl canis, -is, m.: a dog umbra, -ae, f.: a shade
-que conj.: and
silens, -entis: silent erro, -are, -avi, -atum: to wander fero, ferre, tuli, latum: to carry, report; ferunt: they say moto, -are, -avi, -atum: to move, agitate
-que conj.: and
tremor, -oris, m.: a tremor; an earthquake urbs, urbis, f.: a city
non adv.: not
tamen adv.: however
insidiae, -arum, f.: artifice, craft; ambush, plot venio, -ire, veni, ventum: to come
-que conj.: and
vinco, -ere, vici, victum: to overcome fatum, -i, n.: fate praemonitus, -us, m.: a premonition, forewarning possum, posse, potui: to be able
deus, -i, m.: a god
stringo, -ere, strixi, strictum: to draw in hostility
-que conj.: and
fero, ferre, tuli, latum: to bring in prep. with acc.: into templum, -i, n.: temple, shrine gladius, -i, m.: sword nec, neque conj.: and not, also not, nor enim conj.: for, for instance, indeed locus, -i, m.: place
ullus, -a, -um: any
in, prep. with abl.: in Urbs, urbis, f.: city, Rome ad prep. with acc.: to facinus, -oris, n.: deed, action; crime dirus, -a, -um: fearful, horrible, frightful -que conj.: and, also placeo, -ere, -ui, -itum: to please, be pleasing nisi conj.: if not, unless Curia, -ae, f.: the Senate caedes, -is, f.: killing, slaughter tum adv.: then, at that time, next vero adv.: indeed, in fact Cytherea, -a, f.: Cytherea, Venus manus, -us, f.: hand percutio, -cutere, -cussi, -cussum: to strike, beat uterque, utraque, utrumque: each of two, both pectus, -oris, n.: breast, heart et conj.: and, also

Aeneades, -ae, m.: descendant of Aeneas moliar, -iri, molitus sum: to endeavor, attempt, try condo, -dere, -didi, -ditum: to hide, conceal

nubes, -is, f.: cloud

qui, quae, quod: who, which what prius adv.: formerly, before, previously infestus, -a, -um: hostile, dangerous

Paris, -idis, m.: Trojan prince who carried off Helen sum, esse, fui, futurus: to be eripio, -ere, eripui, ereptum: to snatch away, rescue

Atrida, -ae, m.: son of Atreus, Menelaus

et conj.: and, also

Diomedeus, -a, -um: Diomedean, of Diomedes hero of Trojan war, son of Tydeus

Aeneas, -ae, m.: son of Venus and Anchises

fugio, -ere, fugi: to flee, escape

ensis, -is, m.: sword